Policy

This policy applies to all employees, officers of the organisation, and to volunteers. Other individuals performing functions in relation to the organisation, such as agency workers and contractors, are encouraged to use it.

It is important to the organisation that any fraud, misconduct or wrongdoing by workers or officers of the organisation is reported and properly dealt with. The organisation therefore encourages all individuals to raise any concerns that they may have about the conduct of others in the organisation or the way in which the organisation is run. This policy sets out the way in which individuals may raise any concerns that they have and how those concerns will be dealt with.

Background

The law provides protection for workers who raise legitimate concerns about specified matters. These are called "qualifying disclosures". A qualifying disclosure is one made in the public interest by a worker who has a reasonable belief that:

- a criminal offence
- · a miscarriage of justice
- · an act creating risk to health and safety
- an act causing damage to the environment
- a breach of any other legal obligation
- · concealment of any of the above is being, has been, or is likely to be, committed. It is not necessary for the worker to have proof that such an act is being, has been, or is likely to be, committed - a reasonable belief is sufficient. The worker has no responsibility for investigating the matter - it is the organisation's responsibility to ensure that an investigation takes place.

A worker who makes such a protected disclosure has the right not to be dismissed, subjected to any other detriment, or victimised, because they have made a disclosure.

The organisation encourages workers to raise their concerns under this procedure in the first instance. If a worker is not sure whether to raise a concern, they should discuss the issue with their manager or the Head of People Development.

Principles

- Everyone should be aware of the importance of preventing and eliminating wrongdoing at work. Workers should be watchful for illegal or unethical conduct and report anything of that nature that they become aware of.
- Any matter raised under this procedure will be investigated thoroughly, promptly and confidentially, and the outcome of the investigation reported back to the worker who raised the issue.

- No worker will be victimised for raising a matter under this procedure. This means that the continued employment and opportunities for future promotion or training of the worker will not be prejudiced because they have raised a legitimate concern.
- Victimisation of a worker for raising a qualified disclosure will be a disciplinary offence.
- If misconduct is discovered as a result of any investigation under this procedure the organisation's disciplinary procedure will be used, in addition to any appropriate external measures.
- Maliciously making a false allegation is a disciplinary offence.
- An instruction to cover up wrongdoing is itself a disciplinary offence. If told not to raise or pursue any concern, even by a person in authority such as a manager, workers should not agree to remain silent. They should report the matter to the CEO or a member of the Board of Trustees.

This procedure is for disclosures about matters other than a breach of an employee's own contract of employment. If an employee is concerned that their own contract has been, or is likely to be, broken, they should use the organisation's Grievance Procedure.

Procedure

- (1) In the first instance, and unless the worker reasonably believes their manager to be involved in the wrongdoing, or if for any other reason the worker does not wish to approach their manager, any concerns should be raised with the worker's manager. If they believe the manager to be involved, or for any reason does not wish to approach the manager, then the worker should proceed straight to stage 3.
- (2) The manager will arrange an investigation into the matter either by investigating the matter themselves or immediately passing the issue to someone in a more senior position. The investigation may involve the worker and other individuals involved giving a written statement. Any investigation will be carried out in accordance with the principles set out above. The worker's statement will be taken into account, and they will be asked to comment on any additional evidence obtained. The manager or the person who carried out the investigation will then report to the Board of Trustees, which will take any necessary action, including reporting the matter to any appropriate government department or regulatory agency. If disciplinary action is required, the manager or the person who carried out the investigation will report the matter to the CEO and start the disciplinary procedure. On conclusion of any investigation, the worker will be told the outcome of the investigation and what the board has done, or proposes to do, about it. If no action is to be taken, the reason for this will be explained.
- (3) If the worker is concerned that their manager is involved in the wrongdoing, has failed to make a proper investigation or has failed to report the outcome of the investigations to the Board of Trustees, they should inform the Chair of the Board of Trustees, who will arrange for another manager to review the investigation carried out, make any necessary enquiries and make their own report to the board as in stage 2 above. If for any other reason the worker does not wish to approach their manager they should also in the first instance contact the Chair of the Board of Trustees, as above. Any approach to the Chair of the Board of Trustees will be treated with the strictest confidence and the worker's identity will not be disclosed without their prior consent. Contact email is board@r-evolution.org.uk

(4) If on conclusion of stages 1, 2 and 3 the worker reasonably believes that the appropriate action has not been taken, they should contact the Advisory, Conciliation and Arbitration Service (Acas), the whistleblowing charity Protect or trade union for more guidance.
